My reactions of the videos

(more specifically my comments about them because it would show my experience with it after watching both of them)

also spoiler warning (because I'll be mentioning stuff within both of the videos, you don't even need to come back to read these they're just my thoughts on them there are probably theories more in depth and realistic than mine)

Now let's get to the classic and my old favorite (still one of my favorites)

Spy's disguise

Is Emesis blue connected to this?

Before the failure of the respawn machine

Spy had a mental illness in the end of the story which could be because of the act of respawning like all the rest

Just taking more time for him to get the side effects

Hell red Engineer lived after death like how Medic did multiple times and seemingly teleported place to place and there might be meaning in the blue and red glowing of the eyes in both stories that I haven't found out yet especially how Medic has one red eye and one blue sometimes it's also really sad to think that Medic killing himself would actually lead to a better ending

if he blew up his entire brain like for Sniper he wouldn't become a monster so his inner demon might have been onto something

Normally Spy turning into a sentry is comedic but this story delves into what that would do to spy’s psychology

And how other people wouldn’t take kindly to this change in power since they were the ones wiping the floor with him before he became overpowered

And I like that Idea, I think taking something funny seriously and thinking about its implications is the way to go

My favorite story that I wish more people will see

Embesis Blue

Medic lost himself after being shot in the head and reviving while before he emerged more easily after being shot

Whatever was in his head wanted him to do it to emerge

If respawning gave people a mental illness it would only add up over deaths

So like I’ve thought it was medic the whole time but not the medic in that time but the end of his story

He even saw the inevitable

Yet Spy didn’t know which medic he was leading to the creation OF the last medic

To remind my future self I thought the man with a mask was spy

The mask with the long nose

But now I think it was the man with a different mask the white face

He was burnt and had no willingness to kill himself

If Spy respawned he would be much more mad and still try to kill medic for him killing him

Now I have to wonder why scout would fight heavy

Did he just completely lose it

So pretty much if there was no spy there would be no murderer medic

There would be no deaths

So frozen Demoman was correct

The villain only showed himself after burnt Spy did

Medic never got the medication

It only calmed him down

It took them 3 times to become a monster in the beginning of the video

Medic got shot by engineer

Then Spy

And finally got in a car crash

And it took his eyes

The voice of the man with a mask was hard to hear like the voice of spy after he died once and put on the white mask making a speech

A white mask that could’ve been replaced after he got shot in the head

So he could be spy that died twice gone back in time meeting himself leading to him creating the monster he became

Scout lost his teeth in his dream

In the start Medic was dreaming of what would happen

In the end medic lost his teeth after looking in the mirror

The big man was shot in the heart

Medic revived him

I should’ve guessed that simply by the choice of hat and clothes but at first I had no idea how he could’ve been there

Now that I think of it the man with a doctor mask had the same gun as spy

So it could still be spy

And Spy thinking it was impossible for medic to steal the briefcase because he already did

He would also be likely to try to hurt Medic

And spare himself

The same way he spared himself again later when he got a different mask

By that time he would want to kill soldier as well

Medic falls asleep in his van

He likely fell asleep from the pill not being as anxious

The anxiety keeping him awake this whole time

I really enjoyed this story because it makes your mind go WILED and also the way it was told it revealed some things while also keeping some things a mystery yet it puts the TF2 lore in it as well while also being its own thing honestly even if the story itself is horrifying and the concept my heart didn't feel like it was gonna burst I instead felt intrigued rethinking stuff even after watching the movie to every tf2... no to every person out there they should definitely give this a watch and support the creators

this is just mind blowing honestly

I'm realizing more and more things

"longer than you think" sniper told soldier, the same thing that demo man said so demo man could've gone to some places in the future and heard these things demo man soldier and Archibald ALL teleported in different places but I have no idea

I still need to find out where the fire came from in the recording

I think there were two Archibald’s from different times pre existing at the same time, one who got the idea and one that didn't, one that didn't get the idea to pretend like he was captured who got killed by... someone and the one that got the idea meeting spy and getting shot which would likely make a time paradox but I have no other ideas

I don't think Archibald is sleeping there unless he was knocked out to then be actually captured

I realized maybe the time traveling spy could show a timeline of which time and place the spy is from by the number of bullets in his gun

the latest spy that we see IN the story like the man with a plague mask "I'm the only sane one here" could also mean "I'm the only cured one out of all of you"

but hey I don't think spy could just grow out a body after being decapitated so I'll guess plague spy will be first and Pyro spy will be second plague spy had a gun that lost 2 shots to heavy by soldier yet it was pretty much full when he shot soldier in the hell place

it's just... too confusing

I'm not smart enough to get every detail but I'm getting some ideas

It was probably my first time theorizing about who it would be in the end and being correct while also realizing there were more clues of that being the case

Like medic harming scout

How he could've done that what would be the motive what was up with scout's dream why did the boxes move why did soldier meet himself

I still don't know how that timey wimey stuff works or how it came to be but my theory is that the machine uses it to revert people back because it also allows people to teleport to place to place and if it's not controlled then it won't teleport them to the respawn room but instead in different times and different places entirely

Also I really like how Soldier's trauma was used

Ptsd of the world war and even the horror of seeing people die and then be brought back to those monsters

An ability that Medic apparently had until his 3rd death when he became a monster

Also also I think that it's sad that the characters knew exactly what would happen yet they could not do anything to stop it even if technically they didn't have enough pieces to fill in the puzzle

But I also have to mention that I realized that redmand and bluetard actually had new G-man’s avatars

I’m mentioning this now so that you won’t be thinking about it as much when you realize it but instead think about just how accurate their depiction is

Even after death one of them proudly self congratulating that they won the story hooked me in better than any other story I’ve ever watched because I’m the type of person that doesn’t even watch movies or shows anymore

While the only time I ever paused the movie was where I had to eat or when I had to Google what “Emesis Diazepam” meant

In conclusion I hope more people watch it because from the animation from voice acting to the entire story and how interesting it is

It’s something really special and my words won’t be enough to convince you you’re… what?

Please don’t leave

I might not have much else but… I just want to read your comment about it

I’ll feel less isolated

Less dead

At least in the time period that you’ll comment on… anyone? Please?

I see… go ahead then
